TUB PRENCH EMPEROR VISITS CHALONS AND AD-DRESSES THE ARMY. Paus, June 24. - The Emperor to-day visited the Camp of Chalons and made a speech. He reminded the army that this was the anniversary of Solferino, and said he was pleased to see they had not forgotten the great cause for which they fought ten years ago. The Emperor continued: Preserve the remembrance of the battles fought by your fathers and yourselves. for our victories are the history of progress and civilization. You will thus maintain the military spirit which is the triumph of the noble over the vulgar passion. It is fidelity to the flag-devotion to the country. Continue in the same course, and you will always be worthy of so great a nation, and will maintain the military spirit necessary to so great a people. Marshal Bazaine, in presenting to the Emof Solferino and Magenta, said: "Your soldiers recall the day you led them to victory. The glorious appiversary shall never be effected from our hearts. Under all circumstances they remain devoted to your dynasty.

Several Northern speakers have left here to canvass the State of Virginia for Wells, as it is claimed that all the national talent is enlisted on the Walker side. Virginians of the Wells party, who arrived here to-night, complain that Chief Justice Chase has been lending his influence in Virginia to the Walker, or conservative party, and has been very effective in that direction. RICHMOND, June 23 .- Joseph Kelly, shot on Thursday evening, at the registration office, by Police Captain Callahan, died this morning. His death creates much feeling in the city, he having been held by three policemen, while Callahan, who had a personal feud with him, shot him. Kelly was Vice-President of the Seymour and Blair Club during the Presidential campaign, and Callahan was an ex-Confederate officer, who had charge of a Confederate prison during the war, and since joined the Republican party. HAVANA, . June 25 .- The volunteer forces have, of their own free will, given up the duty of garrisoning Moro Castle and Fortress Cabanas, and will be relieved to-morrow by a naval force. They have taken this action to convince the Home Government that they had no idea of disobeving its orders or opposing the new Cantain-General.

About the last of May the schooner Grapeshot landed forty men and a portion of her cargo on the Cuban coast. While the boats were landing the men, some passengers on board attempted to run the vessel ashore, and a fight ensued with the crew and officers, in which the captain of the Grapereceived a bullet in the leg. The schooner finally got rid of the whole party, and without landing all her stores proceeded to Turk's Island, where she received clearance and arrived on the 14th instant at Falmouth. Jamaica. There, one hundred and fifty-five packages of arms and ammunition remaining on board were seized by the customs officers, and the captain abandoned the vessel. The seizure was subsequently declared illegal, and the captain has sued the Collector of the Port and others for damages.

Several filibusters who landed at Ballynere were executed at Santiago.

The reports of extraordinary mortality from cholera and dysentery in the ranks of the contending armies are fully confirmed. Nothing is known about the recent military movements, but it is supposed all important operations have been suspended. General De Rodas is expected Sunday.

Closing Examinations of the Howard Pupils and Schools-Mixed Races-Studies in which they Excel-Prizes-Presentation of Cups-Specches by Messrs. Neagle, Moses and Jillson-Prospects.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT. COLUMBIA, June 25 .- The annual examinations and closing exercises of the Howard School were finished yesterday. This institution is devoted exclusively to the colored race, It was established the first year after the war, but under different auspices from the present. Two years ago a large wooden building was erected by the Freedmen's Bureau, at the expense of the general government, and the Howard School established in it. Beyond the building itself the Bureau has had nothing to do with the support of the school. The corps of teachers consists of ten-one principal and nino teachers, all female. Of these nine, eight are white and one colored. The principal, Miss Haley, is from the North, as are all the white teachers, and she has been connected with the school from its commencement. These teachers have been employed and sent South by the New York Branch of the Freedmen's Union Commission. One of them, however, is supported by a private citizen of Hartford-a Mr. Clarke-out of his private means. Recently the Presbyterian Freedmen's lociety has taken the support of teachers in hand, and will continue it in the future. The lands on which the house is built belong in part to the freedmen of Columbia and in part to the New York branch of the commission. the house itself to the United States Government, and the teachers are supported by bene-volent societies and private individuals in the

The ten teachers conduct ten classes or divisions, called schools; and all the pupils are classified carefully in these ten schools. The maximum number of scholars reached in any one month during the session just closing, which began in October, 1868, was in winterjust 600. Of these about 275 were boys and 325 girls. The maximum number-600-is very far above the average number of pupils for the whole session, because the early months did not present as full lists on account of the incomplete supply of teachers. Of the pupils about one-third are negroes, and the other two-thirds mulattoes and quadroons. From a class of twenty-three, which one of the teachers informed me was a fair specimen of the whole as to color, I estimate that the school of 600 pupils is composed of 200 negroes and 400 of mixed race; the mixed element consisting of about 80 black quadroons, 135 mulattoes, and 185 white quadroons. The branches in which these colored pupils most excel, the teachers inform me, are spelling, reading and geography; while they are less apt at arithmetic and grammar. It will be observed that memory is the negro's forte, rather than thinking. The pupils range, as to age, apparently from nine to over twenty. The examinations consisted of three days. The first, Tuesday, was devoted to the primary department. The second, Wednesday, to the intermediate; and in this department four prizes were distributed. The third day, Thursday, was devoted to the higher department, and was the most interesting in that the pupils were the farthest advanced. The pupils of this department were examined in arithmetic, spelling, reading, writing, grammar and geography. They did remarkably well-for ne groes; but judged by the standards that we apply to whites, I cannot say that I think they much with such material; and that the community owe them a great deal for having done all that could be done towards educating the colored people. The work that they have done has been well done, although not all that we and they could wish. I I think the sentiment of the community upon this matter is one of approval and thankfulness. On this third and closing day, there were six prizes awarded, of which two were for 'excellence in echolarship and deportment;" one for "uniform politeness and respectful behavior;" two for "punctuality;" and one for the highest number of credits and merits, including both deportment and recitations. It will be seen that scholarship is not the basis of most of these awards. The individual pupil that held in all respects the highest rank, was so near white that white quadroon, (threefourths white) would not give a fair idea of his color. His hair was perfectly straight, and his features unmistakably Irish. His auster, of the same mixture, bore off two of the highest

.To give specimens of their recitations would hardly convey a fair idea of their attainments; and might appear in a spirit of complaint, while nothing could be farther from the feelings induced by witnessing these exercises.

Incidental to these examination exercises there were several points worthy of note. The audience was almost entirely negroes-the whites being about one to ten. "Just before the close of the exer

Mosea, the Adjutant General and Neagle, the Comptroller General, came forward each with a cup, I asking that the cups be presented as prizes to the most worthy in the two departments, first and second. The presentation of the type was done by Mr. Neagle; and the oc-casion demanded, of course, that both the cup-presenters should be invited to "make a few remarks," Without any apparent reluctance ther both assented, Mr. Neagle leading the way. He had but one theme-himself. He explained to the school-girls and boys how much he had gone through with in his efforts as a leader of the Republican party in behalf of the negroes; how he had suffered insuit, revilings, and all manner of persecutions from the white people in his efforts to advance the negro, and to secure the triumph of the Republican party to which the negroes belonged; how prominent he had been as a leader of that party; and how he was going to die by it; and now they might always rely upon him as the friend of the negroes and a prominent leader of the Republican party. Mr. Neagle, having delivered himself o both cups and speech, sat down with the air of one who felt that the great event of the day was achieved, and well achieved. But the and was not yet. For the Adjutant and InspectorGeneral had brought a cup, and had a speech in him, which had yet to be heard. General Moses had the tags to see that a speech or Moses had she take to see that a speech on Moses by him, just after a speech on Neagle by Neagle, would not do. He accordingly addressed himself to the proper themse of the day and occasion—the pegro, and his education. He said very forcibly that, if there was any place, outside of a Christian church, where feelings of gravity at the importance of the work before m, ahould impress the mind, it was in that sool house. The mingled pathos and plety of the remark produced a profound in press and the speaker's solemn and ascetic tone of voice conveyed a rebuke that none but an eye-witness could possibly appreciate, The General's speech, taken all together, was very pertipent and well put.

CHARLESTON, S. C., MONDAY MORNING, JUNE 28, 1869.

After these visitors had delivered themselves of their cups and speeches, Mr. Jillson, the State Superintendent of Schools, who was there officially, delivered an address to the negross that was full of point, practicalness and sense-just what the occasion called for. He thought it was not the place for political harangues, nor an occasion whereat things should be said to embitter race against race, and political party, against political party; and every honest man and woman, white and black, there, fully endorsed that sentiment, and some of these times. This winds up the session of the Howard School of freedmen; and a holiday comes now until the first projector, when the next ses-sion is to open. The prospects are said by those connected with the institution to be favorable for a fine school next session.

Our white people sincerely sympathize in these efforts to elevate and educate the negro; and the value of every one of them is enhanced in the direct ratio of their elevition.

There appears to be some doubt as to whether General Sickles will eventually accept the mission to Spain. A question has raised as to whether his case comes under the act of March, 1869, relative to officers of the army and navy accepting and holding diplomatic and consular positions. It is understood the Attorney-General, on being questioned raplied that General Sickles' case is clearly within the provisions of the law, and that his seing on the retired list makes no difference. After the fall of the sland he retreated with his little steamer be fore the enemy's fleet to Elizabeth City. Here, like a lion brought to bay, he fought with desperation against overwhelming odds. His vessel was boarded, but he refused to surender, and was wounded and forced to the eck, and even then refused to pull down the flag which he was willing to die for. His victors, astonished at his during valor, refused to use their right of power upon him, and con-fined him to the deck, which was red with his

Taylor, fourteen shares; E. B. Mongen, of Cayuga, ten abares; A. B. Stout ten shares, and two other shares owned by other parties, making in all one hundred shares. The shares are valued at ten thousand dollars, making the concern worth about one million dollars. The different interests are divided as to who will be Mr. Raymond's successor. One interest favors Geo. William Curtiss, another interest would like to see Mr. Godkin, of the Nation, and another interest is pressing Mr. District Attorney Tracey, of Brooklyn. How the matter will end it is impossible to say. The Times is a prospe newspaper, and is paying large dividends.

THE NEW CABINET MINISTER.

The Change in the Navy Department. What is Thought of the New Secretary-A Sketch of his Career.

The event of Friday at Washington was the resignation of Mr. Borie, Secretary of the Navy, and the appointment of Mr. George M. Robeson, of New Jersey, in his place. The correspondent of the Baltimore Sun writes :

The resignation of Mr. Borie just at this date was as unlooked for as was another selection of a member of the Cabinet from a comparatively obscure class, having but little notoriety in his own State, and being absolutely unknown to our people at large.

The resignation of Mr. Borie at no distant day had been prognosticated by the Washing-ton correspondents, but it had also been positon correspondents, but it had also been positively asserted by gentlemen representing the Radical press, and claiming to speak "by authority," that Mr. Borie had no intention of giving up the office. His official duties, however, have all along been performed by Admiral Porter, the latter being, as it were, Secretary de facto, and Borie being merely de jure head of the Navy Department. It seems the affair was brought about so quietly that even some members of the Cabinet were not aware of what was transpiring until Mr. Robeson had taken the oath of office. And it is reported that Mr. Borie was permitted to name his successor, and himself suggested Robeson. Whereat there is a loud outery from the Pennsylvanians now here, who claim that of right and in all fairness the State of Pennsylvania should have a member of the Cabinet, and they berate Mr. Borie for neglecting the interests and in all fairness the State of Fennsylvania should have a member of the Cabinet, and they berate Mr. Borie for neglecting the interests of his own State in that particular.

As for the new appointment, it has taken everybody by surprise, and the universal inquiry has been, "Who is Robeson?" Very little satisfaction could be obtained in response to this inquiry, until a New Jersey politician turned up, in the course of the afternoon, and gave the gratifying intelligence that he is well acquainted with Hon. George M. Robeson, who is, or was this morning, Attorney-General of the State of New Jersey; that he is "a pretty fair lawyer," a good man, was once Adjutant-General of his State, is a bachelor, rather, above medium size, robust health and about forty-free years of "age. And this is all we know, thus far, of the personel or anti-psedents of the new Secretary of the Navy. It is added, however, that Mr. Robeson has had no legislative or other experience to test his qualities as a stateman.

In conversing upon his appointment this morning, Mr. Roteson said he had no doubt that the people were surprised when the change was announced, but they were certainly not more surprised than he was when he received more surprised than he was when he received notice of his appointment. It was entirely unexpected and unsolicited on the part of himself or his friends. Mr. Borie, it is understood, resigned on account of ill health. His resignation was handed to the President this morning, and his successor was immediately appointed, and the oath of office was administered to him at nooft by Justice Cotter, of the District Supreme Court. He was subsequently introduced to the officers and heads of bureaus in the Navy Department and set about family introduced to the onicers and needs or bureaus in the Navy Department, and set about familiarizing himself with the duties of his new position. It is pretty generally understood that Admiral Porter will retain his present position in in the department, and the presumption is, therefore, that the general policy that has been pursued thus far will not be changed.

The outgoing Secretary of the Navy dined and wined the incoming functionary this evening. Among others there were present Senator Cattell and Admiral Porter. Mr. Borie leaves for Philadelphia to-morrow. He expresses the most profound disgust for official life.

A dispatch from Trenton, N. J., says:

Hon. George M. Robeson appointed by the President Secretary of the Navy, to fill the vaccancy occasioned by the resignation of Secretary Borie, is a son of Judge William P. Roteson, of Warren County, New Jersey, who was a leading Whis. Long and prominently connected with the politics of the State. his. Robeson entered Primeston College in 1844. Upon graduating, in 1847, he entered the law office of Chief Justice Hornblower, of Newark. Upon concluding his legal studies in 1850, he was associated in practice with Hon. A. C. M. Pennington. Subsequently remuving to Camden hs was appointed prosecutor of the pleas for that county in 1859. Upon the election of Mr. Freliughuysen to United States Senate in 1867, Mr. Robeson was appointed by Governor Ward Attorney-General, which position he resigns for his read within Heiner Author. A dispatch from Trenton, N. J., says for his new duties. He is about 41 years old, and holds high rank in his profession. To his fine legal qualifications he unites general knowledge and practical ability, which give promise of efficiency and usefulness in his new promise of efficiency and usefulness in his new position.

Mr. Robeson is a strong, decided Republican on all questions of national policy, and is in entire accord with the party which supported the election of General Grant. It is a curious coincidence that the only position ever held in the Cabinet by a New Jerary man has been that of Secretary of the Navy. It 1828, Samuel L. Southard was appointed Secretary of the Navy, by President Monroe, and continued in this position during the entire administration of John Quincy Adams. In 1834 Mahlon Dickerson was appointed by General Jackson, and he continued in Van Buren's Cabinet for more than a year. Both were distinguished men, and added to the national reputation by their administration of the Navy Department.

The Ledger says: For two weeks past we have had very favorable weather, which has given new life to the cotion crop and pleasant dreams to the planter. In many cases smiles have taken the places of sour frowns, and if it wasn't for that much dreaded caterpillar we think some would be disposed to brag a little. Colleton.

A letter from Colleton County, dated the 21s A letter from Colleton County, dated the 21st inst., says: Most of the planters have cultivated quite enough corn for their necessities, and this crop looks very well indeed; there is fully as much planted as there was last year. The cotton looks very well. It was thought that the cold spring had injured it; but so far from this being the case, I think it was advantageous, for it kept the cotton back until it had gained strength and thinned out all of the weak plants, which would have only absorbed the nutriment from the stronger, and as soon as the warm weather came the plants sorbed the autriment from the stronger, and as soon as the warm weather came the plants shot forward and have been growing fluely, and are now probably larger and stronger than they would have been if we had had an early and warm spring. I remember that in 1859, when our largest cotton crop was produced, the spring was cold and late, and followed by a severe drought. There has been more land put in cotton this season than last, and if we have as fine weather for the balance of the summer as we have had for the past six weeks, I think there will be a larger crop made. The freedmen are working well and steadily, mere so than any year since "free freedmen are working well and steadily, mere so than any year since "free steadily, mere so than any year since 'free-dom," and there are more of them in the fields. I have now been planting tweive years, and must say that I have never had more cause to be satisfied with the prospect of my crop and those around me than I have this

FRANCIS S. RODGERS, RECOUTORS. E. H. BODGERS, THE SEASON OF EXHAUSTION .-

No matter how vigorous by nature the system and the constitution may be, they must necessarily suffer more or less from the depleting effects of the tempe reture of midsummer, unless strengthened and sus-tained by wholesome tonic treatment. The extra pressure upon the vital forces must be met and counterbalanced by an extra resistant power; the unusual and rapid consumption of the animal flu ds by profuse perspiration, must be compensated by the perfect digestion and assimilation of the food taken into the stomach, from which both the fluids and the solids of the body are derived. Otherwise the physical strength declines, and the mind, sympathiz-ing with the machinery through which it acts, becomes depressed and enervated. A stimulant is therefore absolutely required at this season; not a violent one, calculated to produce febrile excitement but something which will recruit and reinforce th whole organization in proportion to the extraordinary drain to which the torrid heat subjects it. This desideratum is supplied in a palatable and most efficient form in HOSTETTER'S STOMACH

BITTERS, which the people of this country, after more than twenty-five years: experience, have ac cepted and endorsed as the best tonic, alterative and anti-bilious preparation which medical chemistry has yet succeeded in obtaining from the strength-sustaining, healing and purifying products of the empound has its own specific virtue, and the result of their combination is the most genial invigorant aperient and regulating medicine ever administered, either as a preventive of cure of the disorders most ommon in our variable climate. Among these may be enumerated dyspepsia, biliousness, constipatio fever and ague, nervous debility, and all the mimen proceeding from imperfect digestion. A course of HOSTEITER'S BITTERS is the best possible safeguard against the dangers which menace persons both sexes, and all sges, during the heated term, June 26
